TRANSITION PLAN

When the self-evaluation indicates that public buildings or other non-housing facilities fail to meet Section 504 program accessibility standards, then the grantee must develop a transition plan setting forth the steps necessary to eliminate all instances of noncompliance. In formulating the plan, one of two strategies should be considered:

- 1. making structural changes to eliminate physical barriers to handicapped accessibility; or
- 2. making nonstructural changes in the program or activity conducted in each facility in order to avoid the effects of physical barriers.

As in the case of the self-evaluation, the transition plan must be developed with the assistance of interested disabled persons and/or organizations representing individuals with handicaps. Also, a copy of the plan must be made available for public inspection.

INSTRUCTIONS: List all physical impediments to handicapped accessibility identified in the self-evaluation (Part IV, Columns C, E, and F). Then indicate in detail the corrective measures that will be undertaken to alleviate each deficiency noted, along with the estimated cost and time frame for achieving compliance. In addition, identify the local government official who will be responsible for implementing each change.
